INTRODUCTION

Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) is responsible for managing its assets, including its intellectual assets, in a way that maximises their contribution to the goals of the organisation.

Subject to these responsibilities, Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) is committed to the widest possible dissemination of its ideas and findings where these may assist others.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this policy is to clarify the status of material subject to copyright used by the organisation, and to remove any possible misunderstandings about ownership of copyright.

POLICY

Production of copyright material

At law, material created by employees, of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) in the course of their employment with AusDBF, irrespective of whether it is created using Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) facilities or materials, or during normal working hours, will belong to Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF). What constitutes the course of employment will be determined by the employee's position description and usual duties.

All documents (for example policies, templates procedures etc) created by volunteers on behalf of AusDBF, (for example Board Directors, Committees etc) as part of their roles within AusDBF remain the intellectual property of AusDBF.

An employee's employment contract may vary the default position of when copyright belongs to Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF). The employment contract overrides the default position that exists at law. Employees may be required to sign additional documents vesting or assigning copyright to Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) where that material was created by the employee using Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) resources and during paid working hours. One example of when this may be necessary is if the employee is required to engage in a project or duties that are outside of their normal employment duties.

If any material was created using Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) resources, or during paid working hours, then the onus is on the employee to demonstrate that it was not created in the course of employment. Employees should be aware that performing unauthorised non-work tasks during work hours may subject them to disciplinary proceedings. Where any uncertainty exists, staff are encouraged to discuss this with their supervisors.

Works by independent contractors and volunteers shall be owned in accordance with the written contract under which the work was created. Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) shall ensure that there is a written contract for work by an independent contractor or volunteer specifying ownership. At law, unless a written contract specifies otherwise then independent contractors and volunteers will own copyright in everything that they create.

Any dispute between Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) and its staff, contractors or volunteers, or between staff, or between contractors or between volunteers, on issues of copyright ownership shall be determined by the organisation's dispute resolution procedures. Such determination will be subject to the judgement of any court or tribunal.

Copyright notice

Staff and volunteers of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) should ensure that every publication of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) including any books, newsletters, brochures, forms, reports and computer software contains the following statement:

© Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF), [Year of creation of material]

This statement should not be included in normal business letters, invoices, receipts.

Use of copyright material

Staff and volunteers of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) are required to observe all applicable copyright laws and regulations.

Staff and volunteers of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) may use copyright material belonging to or licensed to Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) only for the purposes of their work for Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF). Where the material is used by Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) under licence, staff and volunteers must act in accordance with that licence.

Staff and volunteers of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) may not reproduce, publish, distribute or adapt third party copyright material in the course of their work for Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) without the authorisation of the copyright owner. Staff and volunteers may not download or reproduce text, photographs or illustrations found on the internet without authorisation of the copyright owner. This includes for use in internal or external newsletters, reports or presentations. All non-generic images and illustration should be sourced from and with the consent of the creator. Generic images may be obtained from a stock image supplier (eg Shutterstock, iStockphoto or Creative Commons).

When reproducing or otherwise using third party copyright material, it cannot be assumed that just because something is on the internet that it is free for everybody to copy and use. This includes images on Facebook or photo sharing websites such as Flickr. Acknowledgement of source of the material does not overcome the need for authorisation; actual authorisation is still required.

The Business Services is required to institute procedures that will ensure:

- a) that all uses of third party copyright materials are recorded, and
- b) that all compensable uses of copyright material are appropriately processed.

Copyright on Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) materials

All materials produced by or on behalf of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) are subject to copyright. Permission to reproduce such materials depends on the category into which they fall.

All materials produced by or on behalf of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) will be classified by Business Services into one of the following classes:

1. Those materials that are copyright and that cannot be reproduced by any process other than for the purposes of and subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act and any licensing agreement between the user and Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF).
2. Those materials that are copyright and that may nonetheless be circulated and/or reproduced as long as any reproduction features specified credits and disclaimers.
3. Those materials that are copyright and that may nonetheless be reproduced without conditions.
4. Those materials that are not copyright.

The copyright policies of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) are binding on all staff, whether paid or voluntary. The copyright policies of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) as amended from time to time, shall be deemed to be a part of the conditions of employment of every employee and shall be included in the orientation material given to every volunteer.

Moral rights

Where it is reasonable to do so, staff and volunteers of Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) should ensure that:

- a) When reproducing any written material, photograph or illustration, the creator should be acknowledged where it is appropriate to do so. It is generally appropriate to acknowledge the author of a report or article in a newsletter, but it is not appropriate to acknowledge the creator of a marketing brochure or promotional flyer, or where it is desirable for operational reasons that correspondence be sent out in the name of somebody else (such as in the name of a director or staff).
- b) When reproducing any written material, photograph or illustration, a person should not be falsely attributed as the creator unless it is reasonable to do so. For example some correspondence may need to go out in the name of a director, executive or manager even though it was written by somebody else.
