An initiative of the Australian Sports Commission, Australian Dragon Boat Federation and Pride in Sport.

COLLABORATION

This guide is an initiative of the Australian Sports Commission, the Australian Dragon Boat Federation and Pride in Sport. We believe sport is a human right, and that diversity is key to stronger, resilient and capable sporting communities.

AUSTRALIAN SPORTS COMMISSION

The Australian Sports Commission (ASC) is the Australian Government agency responsible for supporting and investing in sport at all levels.

AUSTRALIAN DRAGON BOAT FEDERATION

The Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) is the National Sporting Organisation for dragon boat, and has led the growth of the sport since 1997. AusDBF oversees almost 8,000 paddlers in all parts of Australia.

PRIDE IN SPORT

Pride in Sport is a national not-for-profit program specifically designed to assist sporting organisations with the inclusion of LGBTQ employees, athletes, coaches, volunteers and spectators. The world-first Pride in Sport Index (PSI) benchmarks and assesses the inclusion of LGBTQ people across all sporting and recreation contexts. To learn more about Pride in Sport and how your sporting organisation can become more inclusive visit www.prideinsport.org.au

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF COUNTRY

We recognise the rich contributions Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people make to Australian sport and celebrate the power of sport to bring people together and to promote reconciliation and equality.

We acknowledge the Traditional Owners of the land and waters on which we play.

We pay respect to Elders past, present and emerging and extend this respect to all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders who have inspired and continue to inspire us through participation, team work, courage and leadership in sport.

INTRODUCTION

An ally is someone who shows support to the LGBTQ community.

The key word here is show.

Three quarters of young LGBTQ athletes are not 'out' to their teammates. Sometimes this is because of family pressures, cultural stigma or other complicated reasons. Sometimes this is simply because they don't know how others will react, or if they will be accepted.

Sport hasn't always been the most accepting environment for LGBTQ athletes. While we know most locker room banter and casual insults do not come from a place of malice or hatred – they are damaging nonetheless.

The acronym LGBTQ is used throughout this guide. It stands for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Queer (or Questioning), but should be read to apply to all participants who have diverse genders and sexualities.

Australian Dragon Boat Federation (AusDBF) is working hard to ensure dragon boat is an inclusive, welcoming and safe place. And we're working hard to make sure members of the LGBTQ community know this.

Allies have a vital role in helping us achieve this goal. Acts of allyship and shows of support, whether they be as small as a rainbow pin or as big as a Pride Round, help us to be visible in our commitment to acceptance, inclusion and celebration.

This guide outlines some of the ways allies and teammates can help AusDBF fulfil our commitment to athletes, officials and volunteers who have diverse sexualities and genders.

AusDBF will not tolerate any form of homophobia, biphobia, transphobia, bullying, harassment or vilification. As allies in dragon boat it's our responsibility to call out this behaviour when we see it.

We believe that diverse teams are strong teams, and we celebrate diversity within dragon boat.

My life has been impacted in an enormously positive way being a member of this club in having the opportunity to be part of a community where everyone is an individual and is valued.

CAROLYN LONERAGAN (SHE/HER)

KEY DOCUMENTS

This guide is supported by a range of strategies, policies and procedures which can be found on the Diversity & Inclusion and Resources pages of our website.

These include:

- AusDBF Inclusive Dragon Boat Framework
- AusDBF LGBTQ Inclusion Strategy
- LGBTQ Inclusion Policy
- Trans and Gender Diverse Participation Guidelines
- AusDBF Member Protection Policy (NIF)
- Complaints, Disputes and Discipline Policy (NIF)
- Conduct and Discipline Policy
- Privacy Policy
- Personal Grievances Policy
- National Code of Conduct (including confidentiality)
- Paddler Participant Agreement (including people with a disability)

Definitions for key terms are included at the end of this guide. While we have done our best to define these words accurately, AusDBF acknowledges that language evolves constantly. We encourage members to stay informed with other language and terminology by visiting the Pride in Sport website:

www.prideinsport.com.au/terminology.

WHAT'S THE PROBLEM?

Homophobia, transphobia and biphobia are general terms used to describe negative feelings and behaviours directed at people who are (or are assumed to be) LGBTQ.

These can include:

- negative labels and slurs, such as lesbians being called “d*ke” or gay men called “fagt”
- homophobic or sexist language, such as “don’t be a p*ssy”, “don’t ta kkle like a po*f”
- statements which refute bisexuality, such as “it’s just a phase”
- deliberate misgendering, such as describing strong women as “blo*kes”
- deliberate acts of violence
- policing access to changerooms and toilets
- discrimination in the selection or promotion of athletes or administrators
- isolating or excluding athletes or administrators from social events
- implementing processes or policies which only apply to those who are (or are assumed to be) LGBTQ

50% of gay men and 48% of lesbians have been the personal targets of homophobia. 80% of participants have witnessed homophobic attacks. Transgender and non-binary athletes face even more challenges in sport, media and the broader community.

These behaviours are unacceptable. In some cases, these behaviours are illegal.

Our zero-tolerance policy applies to all people involved in AusDBF, whether they be athletes, coaches, administrators or spectators (including parents and families).

Conventional pronouns are ‘she/her/hers’ and ‘he/him/his’. Some people use gender neutral pronouns, such as ‘they/them/their’. Dragon Boat will always use the pronouns you decide in our written records and when we speak to you.

I am thrilled that both DBNSW and AusDBF are committed to diversity and inclusion, not just on paper but in practice.

ESMOND ESGUERRA (HE/HIM)

IS THIS COMPULSORY?

Freedom of thought and freedom of expression are enshrined in law as a human right. Personal beliefs are influenced by religion, culture, where we grew up, and our lived experiences.

AusDBF does not tell people how to think or what to believe.

We do, however, set a standard of behaviour in our sport.

There are lots of rules in sport. Rules about how (and where) the sport be participated in; rules about uniforms, footwear and protective equipment; rules about what you can drink. Following these rules is part of participating in dragon boat.

We now have rules to prevent bullying, harassment, discrimination or vilification because of race, religion, gender identity, disability, age or sexual orientation.

Hurting our teammates hurts our sport.

While participating in dragon boat it is expected that people will act with respect towards those who are different to themselves. We hope in time that all athletes will learn to empathise with the lived experience of their LGBTQ teammates and better understand them as human beings.

The next chapter looks at how to be an active ally in dragon boat. You may not be comfortable with stepping into that role – and that's OK.

Information about the behaviours we do require can be found in this guide under 'What's the problem?', in the AusDBF Member Protection Policy and National Code of Conduct.

For LGBTQ athletes, knowing they have support is powerful. It can be exhausting to be the only person advocating for inclusion, spreading awareness or confronting problematic behaviours.

Here are some ways you can support your LGBTQ teammates (remember, you probably won't know who they are!).

- Keep learning. Attend a LGBTQ awareness training or research words and concepts you don't understand. There are links at the back of this guide to get you started.
- Share your learning with others. What do you know now that you didn't before?
- Question your own assumptions about LGBTQ people.
- Use your pronouns (if you're comfortable) to help raise awareness.
- Pay attention to the gendered or heteronormative (straight) language you use in your sport. Try 'partners' instead of 'girlfriend/wife' or 'boyfriend/husband'. Let's retire 'guys' as a generic term. 'Team', 'Crew' or 'everyone' works just as well.
- Be seen. Let people know you are an ally by supporting days of significance like 'Wear it Purple' or IDAHOBIT, or incorporating a rainbow into your training kit.
- Respect people's privacy. Each LGBTQ athlete is on their own journey and should not be pushed into sharing or disclosing until they are comfortable (if ever).
- Take a stand against any negativity.
- Don't laugh at gay jokes or innuendo. Make it clear that you don't agree.
- Offer to be promoted as an ally on sport intranet pages or brochures, or during ally events.
- Offer your skills and expertise to dragon boat to help build an inclusive sporting community. Contact information for AusDBF representatives is included in this guide.
- Help run a Pride event in your club or state. A rainbow round is a great way to share information about inclusion and show support for your LGBTQ teammates.

Calling out inappropriate behaviours and language is one of the most important acts of allyship – but it can be difficult. Your response will be different depending on who was speaking, where they were speaking, and how comfortable you are with asserting your stance.

It's important to remember that dragon boat does not tolerate discrimination, bullying and harassment. Supporting LGBTQ athletes can be as simple as saying 'we don't do that here'.

Your coach, manager or AusDBF can help you if there are behaviours in your club, team or league which need to be addressed.

KEY WORDS AND PHRASES

Brotherboy is a term used by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to describe gender diverse people who have a male spirit and take on male roles within the community. Brotherboys have a strong sense of their cultural identity.

Gender diverse is an umbrella term that includes all the different ways gender can be experienced and perceived. It can include people questioning their gender, those who identify as trans/transgender, genderqueer, non-binary, gender non-conforming and many more.

Gender dysphoria is the discomfort a person feels with how their body is perceived and allocated a gender by other people. The experience may occur when a person feels their biological or physical sex doesn't match their sense of their own gender (gender incongruence). This feeling, that there is a mismatch, can trigger a range of responses. Some people experience serious distress, anxiety and emotional pain, which can affect their mental health. Others experience only low-level distress — or none at all. For this reason, gender dysphoria is no longer considered a mental illness. Gender Incongruence is included by the WHO in their Manual of International Statistical Classification of Diseases and Related Health Problems (ICD-11) as a condition related to sexual health. This is a significant step toward recognising Transgender experience as a natural state, rather than a disorder. (Not to be confused with 'Body Dysmorphia')

Gender identity is defined in the Act as 'the gender-related identity, appearance or mannerisms or other gender-related characteristics of a person (whether by way of medical intervention or not), with or without regard to the person's designated sex at birth'. For example, a person's birth certificate may include a marker which indicates that the person's designated sex is female when that person identifies as a man (in other words, their gender identity is that of a man).

Cisgender / cis is a term used to describe people who identify their gender as the same as what was assigned to them at birth (male or female). 'Cis' is a Latin term meaning 'on the same side as'.

Deadname is a term used by some trans people to describe the name they were given and known by prior to affirming their gender and/or coming out.

Intersex (Intersex status) is a protected attribute under the Act. Under the Act 'intersex status' means the status of having physical, hormonal or genetic features that are:

- neither wholly female nor wholly male
- a combination of female and male, or
- neither female nor male.

The term 'intersex' does not describe a person's gender identity (man, woman, neither or both). A person with an intersex variation may identify as a man, woman, neither or both.

Visibility is vital. Show your support on the water, the banks or in the boardroom.

prideinsport.com.au/shop/

LGBTQ (or variations of it) is an acronym for lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer/questioning. It is used to refer collectively to these communities. The 'LGB' refers to sexuality/sexual identity; the 'T' refers to gender identity; and the 'Q' can refer to either gender identity or sexuality.

Non-Binary is a term used to describe a person who does not identify exclusively as either a man or a woman. Genders that sit outside of the female and male binary are often called non-binary. A person might identify solely as non-binary, or relate to non-binary as an umbrella term and consider themselves genderfluid, genderqueer, trans masculine, trans feminine, agender, bigender, or something else.

Pronouns are a grammatical means of referring to a person or persons. Conventional pronouns are 'she/her/hers' and 'he/him/his'. Some people use gender neutral pronouns, such as 'they/them/their'. The pronoun a person uses to describe themselves generally reflects their gender identity.

Sex refers to a person's biological sex or sex characteristics. These may be genetic, hormonal, or anatomical. Unlike 'gender identity', 'sex' is not defined in the Act.

Sistergirl is a term used by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to describe gender diverse people that have a female spirit and take on female roles within the community. Including looking after children and family. Many Sistergirls live a traditional lifestyle and have strong cultural backgrounds.

Transgender (commonly abbreviated to 'trans') is a general term used to describe a person whose gender identity is different to the sex they were assigned at birth. Being transgender is about how an individual describes their own gender, not necessarily about their biological characteristics. Trans people may position 'being trans' as a history or experience, rather than an identity, and consider their gender identity as simply being female, male or a non-binary identity. Some trans people connect strongly with their trans experience, whereas others do not. Processes of gender affirmation may or may not be part of a trans or gender diverse person's life.

Transition / Gender Affirmation means the personal process or processes a trans or gender diverse person determines is right for them in order to live as their defined gender and so that society recognises this. Transition may involve social, medical/surgical and/or legal steps that affirm a person's gender. Affirming gender doesn't mean changing gender, 'having a sex change' or 'becoming a man or a woman', and transition isn't the same as being trans. A trans or gender diverse person who hasn't medically or legally affirmed their gender is no less the man, woman or non-binary person they've always been.

- Social transition is the process by which a person changes their gender expression to better match their gender identity. This may include changing their name, pronouns, and appearance.
- Medical transition is the process by which a person changes their physical sex characteristics to align with their gender identity. This may include hormone therapy, surgery or both.
- Legal transition is the process by which a person changes their identity documents, name, or both, to reflect their gender identity. This may include changing their gender marker on a passport or birth certificate or changing their name on a driver's licence or bank card.

SOCIETAL ATTITUDES/ISSUES

An ally, straight ally, or heterosexual ally is typically a heterosexual and cisgender person who supports equal civil rights, gender equality, LGBTQ+ social movements, and challenges homophobia, biphobia, and transphobia. Not everyone who meets this definition identifies as an “ally”. An ally acknowledges that LGBTQ+ people face discrimination and thus are socially disadvantaged. They aim to use their position as heterosexual and cisgender individuals in a society focused on heteronormativity to counter discrimination against LGBTQ+ people. An ally can also be someone who identifies within the LGBTQ+ community and supports an aspect of that community in which they don’t identify with (e.g. a Cisgendered gay man may identify as an ally to transgender individuals).

Biphobia is abuse towards someone who is attracted to more than one gender, and even includes when that person’s identity is erased. This can be in the form of telling someone that their sexuality is “just a phase”, or even telling them to “pick a side.”

Cissexism is where something is based on a discriminatory social or structural view that positions (either intentionally or otherwise) the trans experience as either not existing or as something to be pathologised. Cissexism believes that gender identity is determined at birth and is a fixed and innate identity that is based on sex characteristics (or ‘biology’) and that only binary (male or female) identities are valid and real.

Heteronormativity (also known as cisnormativity) the view that heterosexual relationships are the only natural, normal and legitimate expressions of sexuality and relationships, and that other sexualities or gender identities are unnatural and a threat to society.

Homophobia refers to negative beliefs, prejudices and stereotypes that exist about people who are not heterosexual. Verbal homophobia is the most common form. Things like name-calling, rumours and abusive words (‘f*g’ or ‘d*ke’). Phrases like “that’s so gay” which compare sexuality to words like ‘crap’ can have a negative impact. Homophobia also include abusive threats or actual physical violence, sexual harassment and deliberately excluding someone because of their sexuality.

Misgendering is an occurrence where a person is described or addressed using language that does not match their gender identity. This can include the incorrect use of pronouns (she/he/they), familial titles (father, sister, uncle) and, at times, other words that traditionally have gendered applications (pretty, handsome, etc.). It is best to ask a person, at a relevant moment, what words they like to use.

Transphobia refers to negative beliefs, prejudices and stereotypes that exist about transgender/ trans and gender diverse people. You may have heard transphobic language like ‘tr*nny’, or seen restrictions on the way that people are allowed to express their gender. Things like which uniform you’re allowed to wear or toilets you can use. Transphobia can also include abusive threats or actual physical violence, sexual harassment and deliberately excluding someone because of their gender.
